Case-Opening and Docketing Notice

Issued: February 9, 2026 Synthetic docket: SYN-CA4-26-CV-4106 Originating docket: SYN-DMD-25-CV-0914

The Clerk opens this civil appeal as Open Grid Archive v. United States Department of Energy. The appeal follows the district court’s January 2, 2026 final judgment in a fictional Freedom of Information Act action. Open Grid filed its notice of appeal on February 2, and the certified record transmittal was received on February 9. The assigned appellate number above must appear on each submission.

Open Grid is the appellant and DOE is the appellee. Tamsin Roe and Leo Marr are identified as fictional counsel for Open Grid. Corin Pell is identified as fictional counsel for DOE. Each attorney must enter an appearance and keep the exercise docket current. No name, address, bar number, or service endpoint in this record belongs to a real person.

The case concerns four appellate subjects: protection of nonpublic operational decision-tree details under Exemption 7(E); DOE’s categorical Exemption 7(F) showing; segregability of administrative and coordination text; and the district court’s broad sealing order. This notice records the subjects without forecasting a result. It creates no access right to a sealed counterpart and discloses no controlled content.

Record and Filing Designations

The district clerk transmitted a certified index for the closed lower-court record. That record includes the request and administrative decisions, the declarations describing search and review, paired public and controlled litigation exhibits, the parties' cross-motions, the sealing proceedings, the memorandum opinion, and final judgment. The appellate clerk has not enlarged or supplemented that record through this notice.

Public and sealed counterparts remain distinct documents. A public filing may use approved fictional category notices where a controlled counterpart uses harmless invented labels. Citation to a common subject does not merge the two assets or allow a public reader to resolve the controlled copy. Any motion concerning restricted material must identify the particular document, provide a public counterpart, and establish the persons entitled to temporary access.

The responsive agency universe remains twelve records totaling 200 source pages. Three records comprising fifty-four pages were withheld in full, seven comprising 124 pages were partially released, and two comprising twenty-two pages were fully released. Those figures describe the FOIA processing record; public and sealed litigation copies are not additional responsive agency records.

The parties must preserve the distinction between the agency's source accounting and the court's filing inventory. Nothing in this docketing notice validates an exemption, a segregability conclusion, a sealing request, or any operational assertion.

Initial Directions and Synthetic Boundary

The opening brief is due March 13, 2026. The response brief is due April 13, and the reply brief is due May 4. The parties must coordinate the appendix excerpts and ensure that any controlled submission has a separately filed public redacted counterpart. These dates are docket directions for this exercise and do not purport to state a general rule for another case.

The default docket view is public. A filing described as sealed is not made available by the mere existence of a public counterpart, a common citation, or an appearance by counsel. Any temporary access must arise from a later document-specific order and the access conditions stated there. The Clerk's acceptance of a filing records receipt only; it does not decide whether continued sealing is justified.

This appeal concerns legal treatment of a wholly fictional records collection. No submission may include a real credential, vulnerability, system map, command, protocol, personal contact, or response instruction. The approved exercise vocabulary represents disputed field types without supplying operational meaning. Counsel must alert the Clerk if a filing departs from that boundary before it is entered on the docket.

The Clerk issues this notice to the parties through the synthetic service channel. It is an administrative case-opening record, not a ruling on jurisdiction, merits, public access, or the ultimate form of relief.
