DOE Acknowledgment and Clarification Request

Date: June 10, 2024 Tracking number: DOE-FOIA-2024-OG-041 Agency reference: ACK-OG-0610 To: Nila Quen, Open Grid Archive From: Elian Voss, fictional DOE FOIA Officer

The fictional Office of Resilience Exercise Records received Open Grid Archive's June 3 request and assigned the tracking number shown above. The request presently seeks approved or superseded Grid Sentinel materials effective between January 1, 2022, and May 31, 2024, together with final approval and supersession records. The office understands that drafts, incident files, live-system information, credentials, and personal contact data are excluded.

ORER has begun an initial routing review. Because the terms could reach several editions and repositories, the office anticipates unusual circumstances involving the need to search separate facilities within this synthetic records environment and to consult personnel familiar with the responsive record families. This notice does not decide whether any record is exempt. The office will process the request under the statutory framework and will communicate about a practical schedule after scope is confirmed.

The request is provisionally placed in the noncommercial news-media fee category. No fee has been assessed. A final fee-waiver determination will accompany the substantive response or an earlier cost notice if one becomes necessary.

Clarification Questions

First, please confirm whether “final or superseded editions” means only the last approved copy of each version, rather than every duplicate distributed to a custodian. ORER proposes to treat byte-identical or content-identical copies as one responsive record and to retain a single authoritative copy for review. Distribution logs would remain independently responsive when they record approval or supersession.

Second, please state whether the request reaches final training editions and quality-review maps. Some Grid Sentinel records are approved for fictional tabletop exercises but are not designated for ordinary program use. ORER proposes to include a final exercise edition if it was effective during the date range, while excluding draft scenarios and participant notes.

Third, please confirm that correspondence is responsive only when it constitutes the final approval memorandum or supersession notice. Routine transmittal messages, meeting invitations, and comments on drafts would otherwise produce a substantially larger collection without adding a final playbook.

Until clarification is received, ORER will preserve the likely responsive final-version collections and begin identifying custodians. Search execution will use the clarified scope. The agency asks for a response by June 21, 2024. If Open Grid needs more time, the parties may agree on a revised date without closing the request.

Processing and Communication

The assigned FOIA officer is Elian Voss, a fictional exercise official. Written questions should reference DOE-FOIA-2024-OG-041. ORER will record any agreed narrowing in a confirmation letter so the search boundary is reproducible. The office will not treat silence as consent to a material reduction; if clarification is not received, it will process the request using a reasonable reading of the June 3 text.

The agency acknowledges Open Grid's request for record-specific exemption explanations, segregability review, and an electronic production. Any production will use searchable PDF when available. If a record is withheld in full, the final response will identify its title or functional description to the extent that doing so does not reveal information claimed to be protected.

ORER also acknowledges the preservation request. Likely custodians have been instructed not to discard final playbook editions, final approval memoranda, or supersession logs while processing and review continue. This administrative hold does not expand the request or require retrieval from media that is not reasonably searchable.

The office appreciates Open Grid's express exclusion of actual incident material and live technical data. Nothing in this acknowledgment confirms that a particular Grid Sentinel record exists, and nothing resolves the application of any FOIA exemption. A substantive determination will follow the completed search and review.
