

Individuals likely to have discoverable information

Draven Pike: business conditions, RIF design, calibration, exceptions, and approval.

Mira Solis: employee-relations intake, EEOC routing, protocol drafting, workbook collection, and termination records.

Naomi Voss: Benton's performance, assignment history, travel discussions, and client transitions.

Sable Finch: the $612,000 annual savings target and payroll modeling.

Tessa Wynn, Omar Ibarra, and Calvin Keene: their duties, source metrics, calibration scores, approved exceptions, and retained assignments.

Information repositories and custodians

Blue Cedar identifies Microsoft 365 mail and calendar exports for Pike, Solis, Voss, and Finch; the employee-relations drive; a finance planning folder; the AuditBridge project database; and the native RIF workbook stored in the operations team site.

Solis is custodian of the employee-relations file and final workbook copy. Finch is custodian of the savings model. The team site audit log records version uploads but not every local draft.

Blue Cedar will produce relevant nonprivileged records with metadata. It will not replace native workbook values with a newly created summary.

Categories of documents

Blue Cedar identifies the anti-retaliation policy; RIF protocol; workbook versions; comparator scorecards; calibration notes; headcount and payroll data; Benton's annual reviews; audit metrics; assignment calendars; termination letter; EEOC position statement; and internal communications concerning the selection.

It also identifies client-transition schedules supporting continuity credits and travel records supporting availability inputs. Benton disputes whether those records were applied consistently.

Client codes BC-ALTO, BC-COVE, BC-LARK, and BC-MESA identify the engagements discussed in the production. The company will provide a custodian declaration connecting each code to its source schedule without disclosing an unnecessary client name.

Damages-related materials and coverage

Blue Cedar will produce Benton's payroll history, benefit-cost summary, termination pay, and records of any severance offer. It reserves objections to mitigation and front pay.

Blue Cedar identifies an employment-practices policy for disclosure but states coverage is not part of the liability issues. It will produce the policy separately and reserves objections to including it in a merits appendix unless a later dispute makes it relevant.

Post-RIF organizational charts and headcount ledgers will show which roles ended, which duties moved, and whether equivalent management work remained. The parties disagree about the inference to draw from that information.

Limitations, supplementation, and certification

These disclosures reflect a reasonable inquiry as of August 15, 2025. Listing a witness does not make every later factual account timely disclosed. Blue Cedar will supplement newly learned subjects as Rule 26(e) requires.

The disclosure identifies Wynn for her duties, source metrics, calibration score, continuity exception, and retained assignments. It identifies no additional discoverable-information subject for her as of the exchange date.

Counsel certifies electronic exchange on August 15. The service list and transmission receipt are maintained with the disclosures; separately produced attachments are not repeated here.
