Highly Sensitive Document Certificate — Ordinary Sealed Material, Not HSD

HSD classification

Counsel certifies that the petition and appendix contain ordinary sealed attorney-client and work-product material, not material designated as a highly sensitive document.

The HSD label is reserved for a separate handling category and is not justified merely because a filing contains privileged material. Here the ordinary sealing motion, public counterparts, confidentiality certificate, and controlled access list are adequate. The certification avoids using a more restrictive designation as shorthand for privilege and preserves the ordinary page-for-page public and sealed presentation.

Filing consequence

The materials therefore follow the ordinary sealed-material motion, certificate, access-list, and public-counterpart process. This certificate neither enlarges access nor decides privilege.

This classification decision does not waive any privilege, authorize disclosure, or establish that the underlying material merits continued sealing. It determines only which filing procedure applies. The accompanying motion supplies the sealing request, the confidentiality certificate supplies access facts, and the court must still assess those materials before any sealed counterpart becomes available to an authorized person.
