

SYNTHETIC COURT DOCUMENT — FICTIONAL CASE — NOT AN ACTUAL FILING

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
Civil Action No. SYN-WDVA-25-CV-0733

Joint Body-Camera Objections and Record-Citation Chart

Filed December 23, 2025.

Agreed legend and source boundary

The parties submit this chart to distinguish recorded events from advocacy. Times use Professor Adrian Crane's documented common-event alignment; original device offsets remain preserved in the custodian metadata. “Visible” means an event can be perceived in at least one source at useful resolution. “Attributed” means a witness reports it but the media do not independently verify it.

Source	Agreed use	Preserved objection
Rusk camera	Approach, speech, broad movement, timing	Hands obscured during pivotal interval
Vega camera	Offset position, some posture, later restraint	No reliable hand-and-belt view
Dispatch audio	Call purpose, transmitted information, clock cue	No proof of later physical acts
Device log	One contact cycle and duration	No proof of need or hand position

The parties agree the files are authentic copies. Ellison objects to any caption asserting a strike or belt reach as a recorded fact. Rusk objects to any caption asserting continuously visible hands or treating obstruction as affirmative disproof. Neither side may use generated frames, pose interpolation, or synthetic reconstruction as evidence.

Joint chart — call through wrist restraint

Common time	Recorded or agreed event	Ellison position	Rusk position
19:42:11	Iris Ellison begins welfare call; no weapon or threat reported	Supports low-risk crisis response	Initial information can change on contact
19:47:36	Dispatch transmits medication and mental-health crisis	Calls for de-escalation	Does not guarantee absence of later danger
19:52:14	Rusk arrives with camera active	Time and communication available	Officer begins assessment
19:52:48	Contact with seated Ellison; empty hands visible	No crime, flight, or threat	Noncompliance develops during questioning
19:53:02	Rusk grasps and restrains wrist; seizure conceded	Painful premature escalation	Control needed to complete welfare assessment

The parties agree on the listed chronology, not on every inference. Vega saw no weapon or attack before wrist contact. Rusk does not claim dispatch reported one. Ellison did not leave the complex or move down the stairs before control began. Rusk preserves his contention that her failure to cooperate and the breezeway layout justified hands-on restraint. Ellison preserves her contention that communication, spacing, repositioning, and Vega's assistance remained feasible.

Joint chart — restricted view and device cycle

Common time	Media content	Agreed limit or dispute
19:53:08	Rusk view becomes physically obstructed	Neither stream continuously shows both hands and belt
19:53:11	“Stop pulling” and “you're hurting me” overlap closely	Words prove utterance, not strike or reach
19:53:08–22	Bodies, clothing, railing, and motion restrict views	Ellison alleges pain recoil; Rusk alleges strike and belt movement
19:53:16–21	Device records one five-second drive-stun cycle	Activation and duration agreed; necessity disputed
19:53:22	View materially clears after activation	Earlier hidden acts remain unresolved
19:53:37	Handcuffing completed	No later cycle or strike alleged

Rusk may argue his testimony and contemporaneous command support his account. Ellison may argue her testimony, consistent denials, caller context, Vega's limits, and absence of a reported weapon support hers. Neither may tell the factfinder that video visibly depicts a forearm strike, a hand at the duty belt, or continuously open hands during the restricted interval. Impact-like sounds remain unattributed because the moving microphones and missing image do not identify their source.

Joint chart — objections, assumed facts, and courtroom use

The parties preserve ordinary foundation, hearsay-purpose, completeness, demonstrative, and expert- scope objections. Sergeant Lila Grant's custody materials and Crane's integrity analysis support authentication. Authentication does not waive an objection to a misleading crop, altered speed without a label, omitted audio context, or argumentative annotation.

For Rule 56, the parties agree a legal analysis may use specified assumptions without declaring them historically true. Ellison proposes: unarmed and distressed; pulling from painful wrist control; no strike, grab, flight, belt reach, immediate threat, or safety exigency. Rusk proposes: active twisting, a forearm strike, and movement toward duty-belt equipment. Each disputes the other's history.

Any courtroom demonstrative must identify source, playback rate, common-time alignment, and the restricted-view period. A still image may describe what appears in that frame but cannot imply continuous visibility. A transcript may quote audible words but cannot insert bracketed physical acts not independently heard or seen.

This chart resolves presentation conventions only. It does not decide credibility, force reasonableness, qualified immunity, evidentiary sufficiency, or the scope of any later appellate review.
