Never-Filed Serrano Statement Disclaiming Rule 4(b)(4) Extension and Excuse

Never-filed date: March 18, 2026 Isolated synthetic docket: SYN-CA4-26-CR-4201-CF-DAY15-NEVER-FILED Never-filed document number: 3

Mateo Serrano, through Celia Arden, responds to the limited-remand order. He does not request an extension under Rule 4(b)(4), does not ask the district court to construe the March 12 notice as an extension motion, and offers no circumstance as excusable neglect or good cause.

Serrano acknowledges the isolated dates: judgment entered February 25; the ordinary 14-day period ended March 11; and counsel delivered the branch notice directly to the district clerk on March 12. He does not contend that the clerk's receipt record is inaccurate.

This disclaimer is knowing and complete for the counterfactual exercise. It does not withdraw the branch notice or concede what consequence the appellate court must impose after the record returns. It narrows the district inquiry by confirming that no affirmative factual basis for an extension will be presented. The statement was never filed in the actual case and cannot alter any actual deadline or notice.

Specific Timing Disclaimers

Serrano confirms that the notice was not deposited in an institution's internal mail system on or before March 11. He invokes no Rule 4(c) filing date and supplies no declaration, mail log, or postage evidence supporting an earlier deposit.

No motion identified in Rule 4(b)(3) was filed, and Serrano does not claim that such a motion postponed the deadline. The district clerk was accessible during ordinary hours on March 11. There was no emergency closure, technical inaccessibility order, or inaccessible filing office on the last day.

Serrano received no incorrect postjudgment deadline instruction from the court or government. The government filed no notice that changed his time. Counsel identifies no misdirected filing, unforeseen event, or circumstance beyond the party's control. She also does not offer a calendaring explanation as neglect deserving relief.

These statements negate every timing-shift or excuse identified by the limited-remand order. They are factual stipulations within the isolated training branch, not advice about a real litigant or filing system. The district court may rely on them without obtaining confidential sentencing material.

Consequence, Signature, and Service

Serrano understands that Rule 4(b)(4) authorizes an extension only if the district court finds excusable neglect or good cause. By disclaiming both relief and supporting circumstances, he leaves no affirmative basis for such a finding. He nevertheless preserves the position that Rule 4(b) is nonjurisdictional and that any appellate consequence depends on proper government invocation.

The statement takes no position on the appeal waiver, aggravating-role issue, allocution claim, or merits of the sentence. It asks the district court only to make the limited findings directed on March 16 and return the isolated record promptly.

Celia Arden signs on March 18, 2026, and certifies fictional service on Bram Ives and Tessa Wren. No real address, bar number, email, account, or electronic credential appears. All transmission occurs within the labeled training docket.

This paper was never entered in SYN-MDNC-25-CR-0328 or SYN-CA4-26-CR-4201. It cannot supplement the actual record, waive an actual argument, or predict an actual outcome. Its effect is confined to the day-15 premise created for this separate exercise.
