

Notice of appeal to the Board

Filing and decision identified

A.R.M., through retained counsel, files this notice on November 18, 2024 from the immigration judge's October 22 decision in SYN-E0IR-24-RM-0113. The notice is timely under the served decision and identifies the application denied as Convention Against Torture protection. The appeal does not challenge the conceded charge of removability.

The Board docket is SYN-BIA-25-0113. A copy is served on DHS through the agency service channel. The notice requests a briefing schedule and preserves the errors summarized below. No new evidence is attached, and no fact after the immigration-court hearing is offered.

Grounds concerning aggregate risk

The decision separately measured risk from Unit Four, Harbor League, and registry personnel and ended the inquiry because no source alone exceeded one half. The notice challenges that method. The admitted evidence described a connected sequence in which registry or contractor information could enable official detention. The aggregate inquiry must consider the combined chance of torture without counting overlapping steps twice.

A.R.M. will argue that the error is visible on the face of the decision and the hearing evidence. The appeal does not ask the Board to accept a mathematical sum or an unsupported percentage.

Grounds concerning acquiescence and evidence

The decision credited the prior official detention and complaint route but relied heavily on formal prohibitions and a hotline. The notice argues that it did not meaningfully address the regional command's receipt, the lack of an independent interview, the June 30 “regional response pending” status, and Pel's explanation of the routing protocol.

The notice also preserves challenges to the treatment of Varo's source map, the relocation analysis, and the weight assigned to the medical and corroborating evidence. These are not claims that every item compelled one factual conclusion; they concern the agency's obligation to consider material evidence under the proper framework.

Relief and certification

A.R.M. asks the Board to vacate the denial and remand for an aggregate-risk analysis and a renewed acquiescence assessment that addresses the admitted evidence. In the alternative, A.R.M. requests a reasoned Board decision applying the correct standard. No request is made for the Board to add post-hearing evidence.

Counsel certifies service on DHS on November 18 and certifies that the four-page notice contains no expanded name, address, or personal identifier. The listed grounds will be developed in the opening brief with citations to the agency pages.
